

Hendon School - 110th Anniversary Celebration

On Sunday 29th September 2024, Hendon School proudly celebrated its 110th anniversary, an occasion that brought together generations of ex-students, ranging from those who attended in the 1940s to those who only left a few years ago. It was a heart-warming event filled with nostalgia, laughter, and memories, as the past and present of our school came together in a truly special way.

The afternoon began with a delightful afternoon tea, where current students graciously hosted ex-students, guiding them on tours of the school building. It was wonderful to witness these intergenerational exchanges, as our current students heard first-hand accounts of school life from decades past. The sense of connection between past and present was palpable as former students shared their memories of their time at Hendon, while also discovering the many ways the school has evolved over the years.

One of the highlights of the event was the archive display in the main hall, meticulously curated to showcase a treasure trove of pictures, articles, and memorabilia from the school's long history. Many ex-students were thrilled to find photos of themselves and their classmates, sparking joyful reunions and heartfelt conversations. It was particularly moving to witness former classmates who had not seen each other in years reconnect, reminiscing about their time at Hendon and the remarkable journeys they have taken since.

It was a privilege to hear the inspiring stories of our ex-students, many of whom have gone on to achieve incredible things in their personal and professional lives. Their accomplishments are a testament to the lasting impact Hendon School has had on so many individuals, and we are immensely proud to have played a part in shaping their futures.

I would like to extend a heartfelt thank you to Alan Freedman, an ex-student and our dedicated archivist, whose tireless work behind the scenes made this event such a resounding success. Alan's commitment to preserving the history of Hendon School is invaluable, and it is through his efforts that we are able to keep these memories alive for future generations.

As we reflect on 110 years of Hendon School, we look forward to continuing our proud tradition of providing an exceptional education and fostering a sense of community that lasts well beyond a student's time here. Here's to the next 110 years!

Thank you to everyone who attended and made this day truly unforgettable.

Author Visit in the Library- Miriam Halahmy

On Tuesday 1st October, we had the pleasure of hosting award-winning author Miriam Halahmy, who delivered two engaging workshops for our Year 9 students. Miriam shared the fascinating process of researching and gathering information for her latest book, Brontë Girl.

During the workshops, students brought scenes to life through acting, explored script readings and opportunities to examine the lives of men and women in the 19th century. The sessions sparked insightful discussions about Charlotte Brontë, with students eagerly participating and contributing.

They also had the opportunity to ask Miriam for valuable writing tips, making the workshops both interactive and inspiring.

A Visit From A Chess Master

On Tuesday 1st October, we were privileged to host FIDE chess master Dr Philip Corbin, who staged a simultaneous chess display against some twenty-six students and two members of staff. It was a unique opportunity for the students to take on not just any chess master ... like me, Philip came to school here, and we were old classmates. In his time here, Philip was the best chess player in the school. After graduating, he returned to Barbados, where he went on to be chess champion on many occasions. He has published a book on his best chess games, a copy of which is in the school library.

It was a most enjoyable experience for all concerned, including Philip himself, who writes: "After playing for Barbados at the 45th Chess Olympiad in Budapest, Hungary, it was my personal pleasure and privilege to stage my second simultaneous display at the school, the first having been nearly seven years ago. The standout game for me was a hard-fought contest against Minos (12.2). My thanks to the school and to Alan for making this possible, and I trust that the evident ongoing growth in numbers and playing strength of the Hendon Chess Club will continue!"

Below you can see some of the games in progress.

“No More Knives” Tour

On Tuesday 24th September, the Message Trust came to Hendon School to deliver its “No More Knives” Tour. Students from Year 7 to Year 11 had the opportunity to hear challenging stories and to learn about the laws and the dangers of knife crime from the Met Police Youth Engagement Team. They also engaged with songs and music from the live band. Students were invited to the end of Tour gig and those who attended absolutely loved it. We will definitely invite the “No More Knives” Tour again.

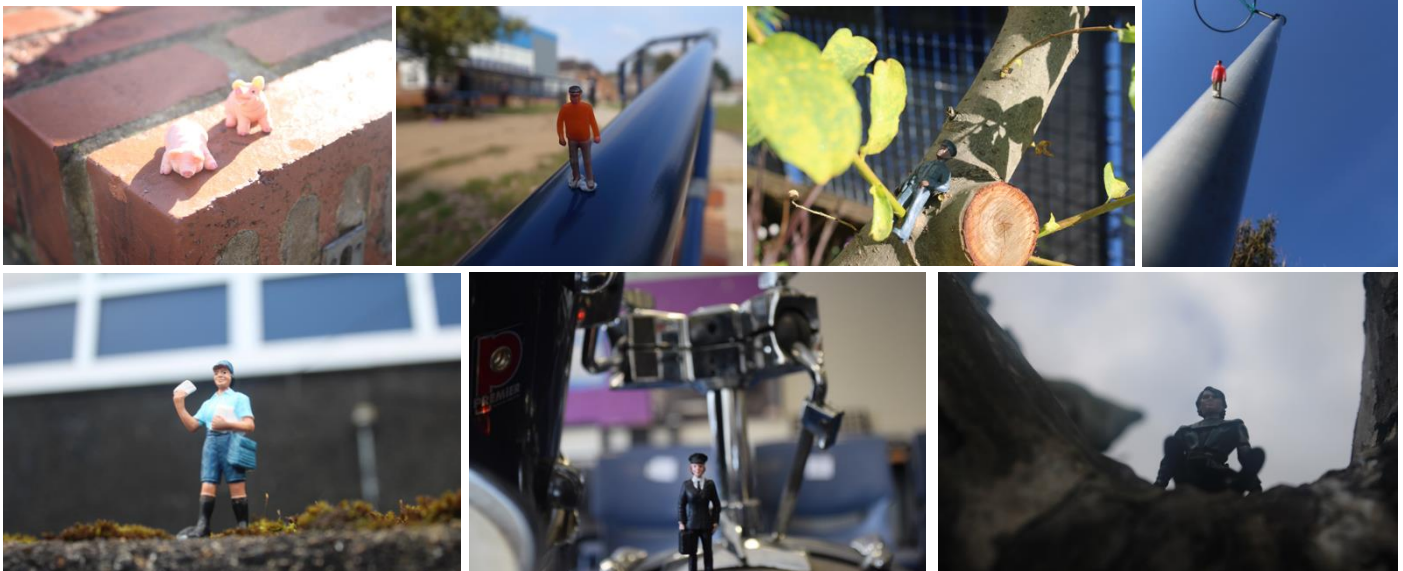

Here are some of our students' comments:

I am pleased to be able to report that our chess club continues to go from strength to strength. Our annual school-wide tournament was a great success once again. Congratulations to Demetre (8.7), who emerged victorious. Here he is proudly wearing his prize, a personalised baseball cap!

Chess club is open to anyone at the school who enjoys playing and would like to improve their game. We now run separate sessions for juniors (Years 7 to 9) and seniors (Year 10+). Players are encouraged to write down their games for me to analyse. I send the best of them to FIDE chess master Dr Philip Corbin, an Old Hendonian and former classmate of mine, for him to provide even better feedback!

Students have responded by creating their own skull drawings to celebrate the lives of ancestors using oil pastels to create expressive colours and shapes. Well done to Masha, Joseph, Leah, Melvina and Kateryna!

Celebrating Achievement: Our Second Award Evening

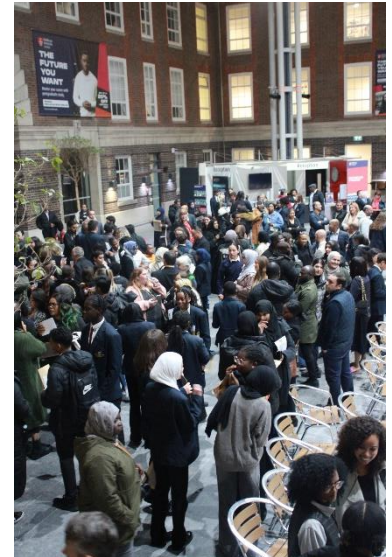

On October 10th, we proudly hosted our second Awards Evening in four years in the impressive Quad at Middlesex University. This prestigious event honoured 104 exceptional students, each selected by their teachers for their outstanding achievements across various categories.

The evening was a joyous occasion, bringing together pupils, families, and teachers to celebrate the remarkable accomplishments of our students. The atmosphere was filled with pride and excitement as awards were presented, recognising hard work, resilience and dedication.

A highlight of the evening was the inspiring speech delivered by former pupil Adin Rasheedi, now a master's student studying Politics and Economics of the Middle East at King's College University. Adin's heartfelt words resonated deeply with everyone in attendance as he reflected on the school values: Achieve, Believe, Lead, and Belong. He shared personal stories of the challenges he faced and the determination that propelled him forward, leaving a lasting impression on our current students.

This Award Evening not only showcased the achievements of our students but also reinforced the strong community spirit that defines our school. We look forward to celebrating even more successes in the future!

Celebrating Black British photographers in GCSE Photography lessons

Year 10 Photography students researched Black British photographers and created posters which will be displayed in the C block staircase next week.

HEATHER AGEYEPONG

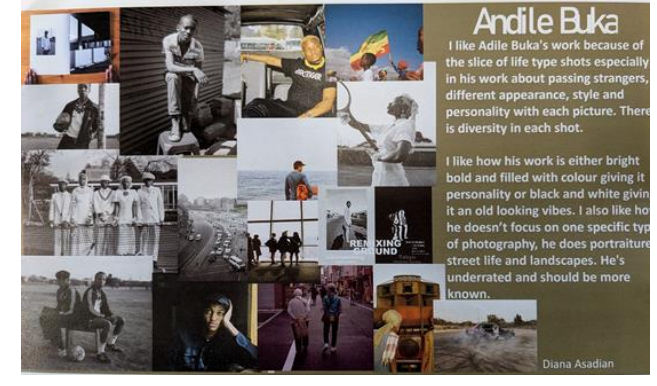

1. Heather ageyepong is a Ghanaian visual artist, performer and actor and maker who lives and works in London .
2. Her art is to do with mental health and dysphoria
3. Her work was inspired by a 19th century Carte-de-visite of Lady Sarah Forbes Bonnetta. Sarah was the goddaughter of queen Victoria .

DENNIS MORRIS

Dennis Morris started his career at an early age. He was 11 years old when one of his photographs was printed on the front page of the Daily Mirror. A camera fanatic since the age of 8, Dennis was known around his East End neighbourhood as Mad Dennis, due to his preference for photography over football. After inadvertently stumbling across a particularly feisty demonstration by the PLO one Sunday, the sharp young Dennis took his film to a photo agency on Fleet Street who promptly sold it to the Daily Mirror for £16.

It was Dennis's photos of Marley that caught the eye of the young Johnny Rotten. Rotten, a massive reggae fan, had long admired Dennis's work and requested that he take the first official shots of the Sex Pistols upon signing to Virgin Records. Still in his teens, Dennis was the same age as the Pistols and they soon learned to trust him completely, allowing him unrestricted access to their strange and chaotic existence.

Andile Buka

I like Andile Buka's work because of the slice of life type shots especially in his work about passing strangers, different appearance, style and personality with each picture. There is diversity in each shot.

I like how his work is either bright bold and filled with colour giving it personality or black and white giving it an old looking vibes. I also like how he doesn't focus on one specific type of photography, he does portraits, street life and landscapes. He's underrated and should be more known.

Diana Asadian

Khadija Mohammadou Saye

Khadija Mohammadou Saye (30 July 1992 – 14 June 2017) was a Gambian-British photographer. Her photography explored her Gambian-British identity and was exhibited in the Diaspora Pavilion at the Venice Biennale in 2017. She sadly died in the Grenfell Tower fire.

Saye was born in London and initially attended the Sion Manning Roman Catholic Girls' School in North Kensington. At age 16 she won a scholarship to Rugby School in Rugby, England. University for the Creative Arts at Farnham and obtained a photography degree. She lived with her mother, Mary Ajaii Augustus Meahy, on the 20th floor of Grenfell Tower in North Kensington.

I think her work is unique and I love the black and white colors they work well with her style of photography.

RIVA

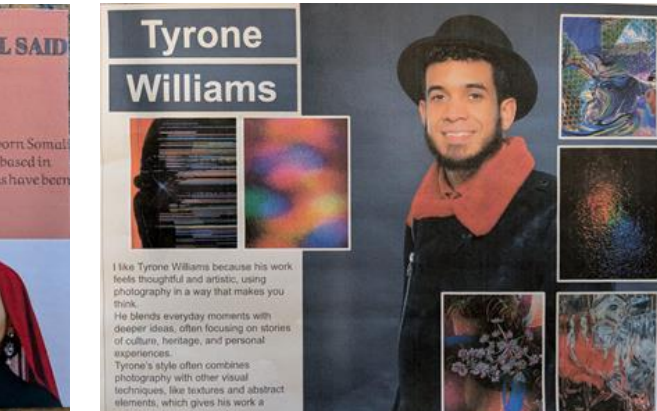

BLACK HISTORY MONTH AMAAL SAID

by noor sabir

Amaal Said is a Danish-born Somali photographer, and poet, based in London. Her photographs have been featured in Vogue.

She won Wasafiri Magazine's New Writing Prize for poetry in 2015. In 2017, she was exhibited in Los Angeles, California. In 2018, her photography was featured in the fourth volume of African Lens and was exhibited in Accra, Ghana. She is a member of Octavia, poetry collective for women of colour, and a former Barbican Young Poet.

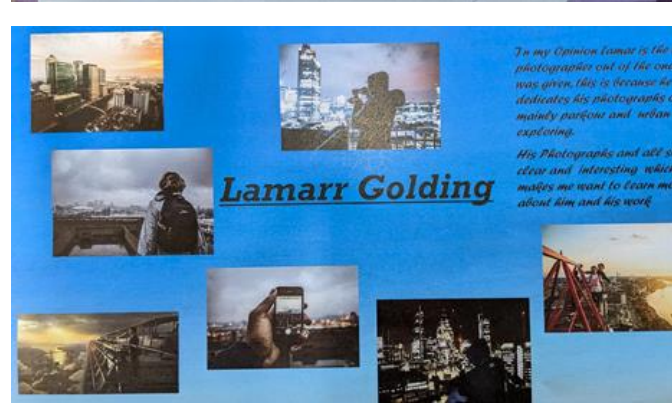

Tyrone Williams

I like Tyrone Williams because his work feels thoughtful and artistic, using photography in a way that makes you think.

He blends everyday moments with deeper ideas, often focusing on stories of culture, heritage, and personal experiences.

Tyrone's style often combines photography with other visual techniques, like textures and abstract elements, which gives his work a unique and creative touch.

Lamarr Golding

In my opinion Lamarr is the best photographer out of the ones I was given. This is because he dedicates his photographs on mainly portraits and urban exploring.

His photographs are all so clear and interesting which makes me want to learn more about him and his work.

Nadine Ijewere

Nadine Ijewere is a London-born photographer of Nigerian-Jamaican parentage. She works in the fields of fashion and portraiture, and is known for celebrating the diversity of her models, many of whom do not conform to the standard fashion industry stereotypes.

At age 26, Ijewere became the first woman of colour to shoot a cover for VOGUE, anywhere in the world.

Leaving university, she went straight into taking her own pictures, crediting social media with helping her to establish relationships with collaborators casting models from Instagram, and enabling her to gradually build her reputation. Ijewere shoots for numerous publications such as WSJ magazine, British Vogue, Vogue US, Vogue Italia, Luncheon, More or Less. Her January 2019 cover story with Dua Lipa, Binx Walton and Letitia Wright made Ijewere the first woman of colour to shoot the cover of one of Vogue edition in the magazine's 125-year history. She has also worked with Dior, Hermes, Stella McCartney, Nina Ricci and Valentino Red, creating still and film campaigns.

Armet Francis

Armet Francis is a famous photographer who was born in 29 January 1945. He was born in Jamaica. Not only is he a photographer but also a publisher who lived in London since the 1950s.

His work and collection can be seen displayed at the Victoria & Albert Museum and the Museum of London. One of his best known photos is called "self portrait in mirror".
